

Appendix B. REFERENCES

1. Janisch, D.W., Reevaluation of Seal Coating Practices in Minnesota, Transportation Research Record 1507, TRB, National Research Council, Washington, D.C. 1995.
2. Reed, J.R. and Holleran, G., Asphalt Emulsions: Definition, Manufacture and Usage. Valley Slurry Seal Company. Congreso Eljectivo de Carreteras, Monterrey Mexico, October, 1996.
3. Standard Specifications for Construction. Minnesota Department of Transportation, St. Paul, MN, 1995, pp 697-700.
4. Shuler, S., Chip Seals for High Traffic Pavements. Transportation Research Record 1259, TRB, National Research Council, Washington, D.C. 1990.
5. McLeod N.W., A General Method of Design for Seal Coats and Surface Treatments, Proceedings of the Association of Asphalt Paving Technologists, Volume 38. St. Paul, MN, 1969.
6. A Basic Asphalt Emulsion Manual. Manual Series No. 19 (MS-19). The Asphalt Institute. Lexington, KY, 1979.
7. A Recommended Guideline for Single and Multiple Chip Seals Using Asphalt Emulsion. Asphalt Emulsion Manufacturers Association. Annapolis, MD, 1985.
8. D.J. Bullard, R.E. Smith, T.J. Freeman, Development of a Procedure to Rate the Application of Pavement Maintenance Treatment, Strategic Highway Research Program Report No. SHRP-M/FR-92-102. TRB, National Research Council, Washington D.C., 1992, pp 357-410.
9. Standard Method of Determining the Flakiness Index and Average Least Dimension of Aggregates. FLH Designation T 508. Central Federal Lands Highway Office. U.S. Department of Transportation.

This page intentionally left blank.